* Write on a standard (or specialized) Braille display in the most natural way possible * Type (or read) from a standard (or specialized) Braille display in the most natural way possible * Writing and typing on Braille display with a regular keyboard is similar to writing on paper * Have a complete Braille keyboard for easier typing * Support voice input in various languages * Can be used with various Braille displays Do you know of any other programs that are similar to braille-s, but for a touchscreen? Not necessarily braille itself, but any other kinds of screen readers and such. Or is this just the best? I've been using braille-s for about 4 months now and am very pleased with it, but I'd like to know if there are any other programs that can do what it does and maybe even do some other cool stuff too. Hi. I don't know if there are any other programs that do what braille-s does, but here are a few things that come to my mind: 1. There are a few programs that can be used on a touchscreen. I like Pipo Braille for example. 2. There are some websites like freescreenreaders.com that have a list of the programs that are available. 3. I use "Screenwriting for the blind" as a screenreader. It has a lot of features, a text editor, a dictionary, etc. 4. If you use linux you can download a bunch of screenreaders with the following command. Code: apt-get install libagda libspeakup-el (replace libagda and libspeakup-el with the name of the braille-s package) Hi.
